

1-31-1912

Bulloch Times

Notes

Condition varies. Some pages missing or in poor condition.

Originals provided for filming by the publisher.

Gift of Statesboro Herald and the Bulloch County Historical Society.

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.georgiasouthern.edu/bulloch-news-issues>

Recommended Citation

"Bulloch Times" (1912). Bulloch County Newspapers (Single Issues). 504.
<https://digitalcommons.georgiasouthern.edu/bulloch-news-issues/504>

This newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the Bulloch County Historical Newspapers at Digital Commons@Georgia Southern. It has been accepted for inclusion in Bulloch County Newspapers (Single Issues) by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons@Georgia Southern. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@georgiasouthern.edu.

ESTABLISHED 1892.

Published Weekly by The BULLOCH TIMES PUBLISHING CO.
D. B. TURNER, Editor and Manager.Subscription, $1.00 PER YEAR.
Entered as second class matter March
23, 1905, at the postoffice at Statesboro,
Ga., under the Act of Congress, March
3, 1879.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 31, 1912.

The man who gets mad at what the newspaper says about him should return thanks three times a day for what the newspaper knew about him and suppressed.

The girl with a sweet voice need not feel discouraged because she has no opportunity to sing in grand opera. She can give great pleasure by being a song bird in the home nest.

The real business of life is the making of a happy home. When you sift the whole chaff of existence, everything goes to the wind but the happiness we have had at home.

Any business is more respectable than what is termed loafing. A young man had better sell claims by the painful than hang around public resorts, murdering time and his own reputation.

When the common earth worms are cut in two, he won't make a fuss about it, but to the tail end will grow a head and to the head end a tail. There will be two worms instead one. Misfortune often doubles our strength.

The world is full of women who can amuse the ordinary man. Can sing, dance or recite for him; can paint, write or decorate in a manner most pleasing, but the poor man often goes begging for a woman who can sew on buttons or mend his clothes; who can cook his food with economy and flavor it to his taste.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure
The only Baking Powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar
NO ALUM, NO LIME PHOSPHATE

Many of us miss the joys that might be ours by keeping our eyes fixed on those of other people. No one can enjoy his own opportunities for happiness while he is envious of another's. We lose a great deal of the joy of living by not cheerfully accepting the small pleasures that come to us every day.

The insane desire to be handsome has made more than one otherwise sensible girl do some downright crazy thing. The powder and rouge smeared on the freckled cheeks is so apparent a deception for the prudent young man not to see and with which he is disgusted. He hates the taste. A freckled face with common sense is handsomer than the best powder can make a face.

Every school boy knows that a kite will not fly without a string tying it down. It is just so in life. The man who is tied down by half a dozen blooming responsibilities and their mother will make a higher, stronger flight than the bachelor, who having nothing to keep him steady, is always floundering in the mud. If you want to ascend in the world, tie yourself to somebody.

For Rent.

A 2-horse farm, on 340 acres of land, three miles east of Statesboro, good house and fence; all of place fenced in a pasture of about 1,200 acres, as good range as there is anywhere; will rent for one, three, or five years. For further particulars see or address Thomas L. Beasley, Statesboro, Ga.

METHODIST CHURCH.

Friday Night, Feb. 2nd, 7 O'clock.
There will be a meeting at the Methodist church Friday, Feb. 2nd, at 7 o'clock, for the special benefit of the young of Statesboro. We will have all of the young people of this service. You will be interested in what our young people are doing.

Dukes-Perkins.

Mr. Hines Perkins, of this city, and Miss Fannie Dukes, of Stillmore, were married in that city Sunday, last.

They are now at home to their friends at the home of Mr. John Barnes, where they have taken rooms and will reside in future.

GREATEST MEDICINE ON EARTH

A prominent citizen of Evansville, Ind., writes: "I was ill for five months with a pulmonary trouble, and had the best of doctors. I had hemorrhages and was in a very bad way. Through the advice of a friend I tried Foley's, and I feel that it saved my life. It is all you recommend it to be. I believe it is the greatest medicine on earth. I have advised others to try Foley's, and they have had the same results." (Name furnished on request.)

We want every one in this vicinity who is troubled with chronic colds, coughs, or pulmonary troubles, to come and get a bottle of Foley's. If it does not go to the seat of trouble, beat the inflammation and stop the cough, we will cheerfully return every cent paid for it. This shows our faith, and proves that you take no chances.
W. H. Ellis Co., Druggists, Statesboro, Ga.

Williams-Brown.

The marriage of Miss Ruby Williams and Mr. R. J. Brown occurred last Thursday evening at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. L. A. McLaurin. The event was a pleasant surprise to the many friends of this popular young couple.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Williams, and is a young woman of rare charms and culture. Mr. Brown is a prosperous business man and has been associated with the Statesboro Buggy and Wagon Co. for many years.

Do not allow your kidney and bladder trouble to develop beyond the reach of a cure. Take Foley's Kidney Pills. They give quick results and stop irregularities with surprising promptness. Sold by Lively's Drug Store.

Morris-Fail.

The marriage of Mr. Wesley Fail and Miss Emily Morris occurred here Monday afternoon, last, Judge E. D. Holland officiating. The young people are residents of Stillson, and left in the afternoon for their home at that place. The groom is the oldest son of W. H. Fail, who was killed in an accident on the S. & S. near Stillson a few weeks ago.

Charles Durham, Lovington, Ill., has succeeded in finding a positive cure for bed wetting. "My little boy wet the bed every night clear through on the floor. I tried several kinds of medicine and I was in the drug store looking for something different to help him when I heard of Foley's Kidney Pills. After he had taken them two days we could see a change and when he had taken two-thirds of a bottle he was cured. That is about six weeks ago and he has not wet in bed since." Sold by Lively's Drug Store.

Scarboro-Riggs.

Mr. Ravenel Riggs and Miss Birdie Scarboro were married last evening at the home of the bride's father, Mr. A. Scarboro, sr., near Aaron. They are now at home to their friends in Statesboro. Mr. Riggs is an efficient deputy under Sheriff Donaldson, and has a large circle of friends who are congratulating him upon winning such a charming life companion.

A HAPPY HOME IN REACH OF ALL

Joy AND SICKNESS DON'T CHUM

TO BE HAPPY KEEP WELL

USE ONLY DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY

TO CURE COUGHS AND COLDS WHOOPING COUGH AND ALL DISEASES OF THROAT AND LUNGS

IT HAS BROUGHT JOY TO Millions

SOLD AND GUARANTEED BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Price 50c and $1.00

Write this down where you'll see it every day. The time to draw business is when you want business, and not when you have more business than you can attend to all ready.

Foley Kidney Pills

What They Will Do for You

They will cure your backache, strengthen your kidneys, correct urinary irregularities, build up the worn out tissues, and eliminate the excess uric acid that causes rheumatism. Prevent Bright's Disease and Diabetes, and restore health and strength. Refuse substitutes. M. M. Lively, opposite new bank building.

Sheriff's Sales.

On the first Tuesday in February, next, J. H. Donaldson, sheriff, will sell the following property at public outcry before the court house door:

That certain brick building in the city of Statesboro, occupied by the city recorder's office, level on as the property of Mrs. J. A. Martin.

That certain house and lot of land on Inman street, the property of T. A. Braswell, levy in favor of Statesboro Building and Loan Association.

Seventy-five thousand feet of lumber located in the mill yard at the Kirby place in the 18th district, the property of J. P. Barr, levy in favor of D. C. Newton.

One sawmill outfit complete, the property of Dock and General Oglesby; levy in favor of Bryant Cowart.

One certain storehouse and lot of land in the town of Port, the property of W. Caldwell; levy in favor of Sea Island Bank.

One red guinea cow, the property of Ida Johnson; levy in favor of Ida Hagin.

One lot of household goods, the property of W. G. Allen; levy in favor of Mrs. M. J. Kinard.

One certain tract of land in the 120th district, known as the Martha Woodcock place, the property of Mrs. Martha Woodcock; levy in favor of C. W. Caldwell and W. L. Street.

And once more the readers sensationalized him. BURNING DAYLIGHT was a big letter headline again. Interviewers flocked about him. Old files of magazines and newspapers were searched through, and the romantic and historic Elam Harnish, Adventurer of the Frost, King of the Klondike, and Father of the South-doughs, strode upon the breakfast table of a million homes along with the toast and breakfast foods. Even before his elected time, he was tormentedly hauled into the game. Financiers and promoters, and all the bosoms and jetsam of the sea of speculation surged upon the shores of his eleven millions. In self-defense he was compelled to open offices. He dabbled in little things at first—"stalling for time," as he explained it to Holdsworth, a friend he had made at the Alta-Pacific Club. Daylight himself was a member of the club, and Holdsworth had Daylight playing closely at first, for he was antonized by the multitude of sharks—"ground sharks," he called them; that flocked about him. He saw through their schemes readily enough, and even marveled that such numbers of them could find sufficient prey to keep them going. Their rascality and general dubiousness was so transparent that he could not understand how any one could be taken in by them.

So it was that he resolved to leave the little men, the Holdsworths, alone; and while he met them in good fellowship, and formed no deep friendships. He did not dislike the little men, the men of the Alta-Pacific, for instance. He merely did not elect to choose them for partners in the big game in which he intended to play. What this big game was, he did not know. He was waiting to find it. And in the meantime he played small hands, investing in several arid-lands reclamation projects and keeping his eyes open for the big chance when it should come along.

And then he met John Dowsett, the great John Dowsett. It was the first big magnate Daylight had met face to face, and he was pleased and charmed. There was such a kindly humanness about the man, such a genial directness, that Daylight found it hard to realize that this was the John Dowsett, president of a string of banks, insurance manipulator, reputed ally of the lieutenants of Standard Oil, and known ally of the Guggenhamers. Nor did his looks betoken his reputation and his manner. Physically, he guaranteed all that Daylight knew of him. Despite his sixty years and snow-white hair, his hand-shake was firm, hearty, and he showed no signs of decrepitude, walking with a quick, snappy step, making all movements definitely and decisively.

It was not long afterward that Daylight came on to New York. A letter from John Dowsett had been the cause—a simple little typewritten letter of several lines. But Daylight had thrilled as he read it. The bald sentences seemed gorged with mystery. "Our Mr. Howison will call upon you at your hotel. He is to be trusted. We must not be seen together. You will understand after we have had our talk." Daylight conned the words over and over. That was the big game had arrived, and it looked as if he were being invited to sit in and take a hand. Surely, for no other reason would one man so peremptory invite another man to make a journey across the continent.

They met—thanks to "our" Mr. Howison—up the Hudson, in a magnificent country home. Daylight, according to instructions, arrived in a private motor car which had been furnished him. Dowsett was already there, and another man whom Daylight recognized before the introduction was begun. It was Nathaniel Letton, and none other. Daylight had seen his face a score of times in the magazines and newspapers, and read about his standing in the financial world, and about his endowed University of Dartmouth. He, likewise, struck Daylight as a man of power, though he was puzzled in that he could find no likeness to Dowsett. Except in the matter of cleanliness—a cleanliness that seemed to go down to the deepest fibers of him—Nathaniel Letton was unlike the other in every particular. This to emaciation, he seemed a cold flame of a man. Not more than fifty, thatched with a sparse growth of iron gray hair, he looked several times the age of Dowsett.

They drank—that is, Nathaniel Letton took mineral water served

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 50th birthday with a crowd of miners on the Circle City Trail. The dance leads to heavy gambling in which over $200,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledges, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensational rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and declares he will join the friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Dowsett and Letton find him in the up-river district Harnish turns two tons of copper which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with them a few days later the big find deviates. A comrade discovers gold and Dowsett takes a rich vein. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization.

CHAPTER VII.

In no blaze of glory did Burning Daylight descend upon San Francisco. Not only had he been forgotten, but the Klondike along with him. The world was interested in other things, and the Alaskan adventure, like the Spanish War, was an old story. He settled down in St. Francis Hotel, was interviewed by the cut-reporters on the hotel-run, and received brief paragraphs of notice for twenty-four hours.

Several months passed in San Francisco, during which time he studied the game and its rules, and prepared himself to take a hand.

Tiring of being merely an onlooker, he ran up to Nevada, where the new gold-mining boom was fairly started—"just to try a flatter," as he phrased it to himself. The flatter on the Toiyah stock Exchange lasted just days, during which time his smashing, wild-bull game played ducks and drakes with the more stereotyped gamblers, and at the end of which time, having gambled Florida into his fist, he let go for a net profit of half a million. Whereupon, smacking his hip, he departed for San Francisco and the St. Francis Hotel. It tasted good, and his hunger for the game became more acute.

And once more the readers sensationalized him. BURNING DAYLIGHT was a big letter headline again. Interviewers flocked about him. Old files of magazines and newspapers were searched through, and the romantic and historic Elam Harnish, Adventurer of the Frost, King of the Klondike, and Father of the South-doughs, strode upon the breakfast table of a million homes along with the toast and breakfast foods. Even before his elected time, he was tormentedly hauled into the game. Financiers and promoters, and all the bosoms and jetsam of the sea of speculation surged upon the shores of his eleven millions. In self-defense he was compelled to open offices. He dabbled in little things at first—"stalling for time," as he explained it to Holdsworth, a friend he had made at the Alta-Pacific Club. Daylight himself was a member of the club, and Holdsworth had Daylight playing closely at first, for he was antonized by the multitude of sharks—"ground sharks," he called them; that flocked about him. He saw through their schemes readily enough, and even marveled that such numbers of them could find sufficient prey to keep them going. Their rascality and general dubiousness was so transparent that he could not understand how any one could be taken in by them.

So it was that he resolved to leave the little men, the Holdsworths, alone; and while he met them in good fellowship, and formed no deep friendships. He did not dislike the little men, the men of the Alta-Pacific, for instance. He merely did not elect to choose them for partners in the big game in which he intended to play. What this big game was, he did not know. He was waiting to find it. And in the meantime he played small hands, investing in several arid-lands reclamation projects and keeping his eyes open for the big chance when it should come along.

And then he met John Dowsett, the great John Dowsett. It was the first big magnate Daylight had met face to face, and he was pleased and charmed. There was such a kindly humanness about the man, such a genial directness, that Daylight found it hard to realize that this was the John Dowsett, president of a string of banks, insurance manipulator, reputed ally of the lieutenants of Standard Oil, and known ally of the Guggenhamers. Nor did his looks betoken his reputation and his manner. Physically, he guaranteed all that Daylight knew of him. Despite his sixty years and snow-white hair, his hand-shake was firm, hearty, and he showed no signs of decrepitude, walking with a quick, snappy step, making all movements definitely and decisively.

It was not long afterward that Daylight came on to New York. A letter from John Dowsett had been the cause—a simple little typewritten letter of several lines. But Daylight had thrilled as he read it. The bald sentences seemed gorged with mystery. "Our Mr. Howison will call upon you at your hotel. He is to be trusted. We must not be seen together. You will understand after we have had our talk." Daylight conned the words over and over. That was the big game had arrived, and it looked as if he were being invited to sit in and take a hand. Surely, for no other reason would one man so peremptory invite another man to make a journey across the continent.

They met—thanks to "our" Mr. Howison—up the Hudson, in a magnificent country home. Daylight, according to instructions, arrived in a private motor car which had been furnished him. Dowsett was already there, and another man whom Daylight recognized before the introduction was begun. It was Nathaniel Letton, and none other. Daylight had seen his face a score of times in the magazines and newspapers, and read about his standing in the financial world, and about his endowed University of Dartmouth. He, likewise, struck Daylight as a man of power, though he was puzzled in that he could find no likeness to Dowsett. Except in the matter of cleanliness—a cleanliness that seemed to go down to the deepest fibers of him—Nathaniel Letton was unlike the other in every particular. This to emaciation, he seemed a cold flame of a man. Not more than fifty, thatched with a sparse growth of iron gray hair, he looked several times the age of Dowsett.

They drank—that is, Nathaniel Letton took mineral water served

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 50th birthday with a crowd of miners on the Circle City Trail. The dance leads to heavy gambling in which over $200,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledges, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensational rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and declares he will join the friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Dowsett and Letton find him in the up-river district Harnish turns two tons of copper which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with them a few days later the big find deviates. A comrade discovers gold and Dowsett takes a rich vein. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization.

They met—thanks to "our" Mr. Howison—up the Hudson, in a magnificent country home. Daylight, according to instructions, arrived in a private motor car which had been furnished him. Dowsett was already there, and another man whom Daylight recognized before the introduction was begun. It was Nathaniel Letton, and none other. Daylight had seen his face a score of times in the magazines and newspapers, and read about his standing in the financial world, and about his endowed University of Dartmouth. He, likewise, struck Daylight as a man of power, though he was puzzled in that he could find no likeness to Dowsett. Except in the matter of cleanliness—a cleanliness that seemed to go down to the deepest fibers of him—Nathaniel Letton was unlike the other in every particular. This to emaciation, he seemed a cold flame of a man. Not more than fifty, thatched with a sparse growth of iron gray hair, he looked several times the age of Dowsett.

They drank—that is, Nathaniel Letton took mineral water served

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 50th birthday with a crowd of miners on the Circle City Trail. The dance leads to heavy gambling in which over $200,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledges, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensational rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and declares he will join the friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Dowsett and Letton find him in the up-river district Harnish turns two tons of copper which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with them a few days later the big find deviates. A comrade discovers gold and Dowsett takes a rich vein. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization.

They met—thanks to "our" Mr. Howison—up the Hudson, in a magnificent country home. Daylight, according to instructions, arrived in a private motor car which had been furnished him. Dowsett was already there, and another man whom Daylight recognized before the introduction was begun. It was Nathaniel Letton, and none other. Daylight had seen his face a score of times in the magazines and newspapers, and read about his standing in the financial world, and about his endowed University of Dartmouth. He, likewise, struck Daylight as a man of power, though he was puzzled in that he could find no likeness to Dowsett. Except in the matter of cleanliness—a cleanliness that seemed to go down to the deepest fibers of him—Nathaniel Letton was unlike the other in every particular. This to emaciation, he seemed a cold flame of a man. Not more than fifty, thatched with a sparse growth of iron gray hair, he looked several times the age of Dowsett.

They drank—that is, Nathaniel Letton took mineral water served

BURNING DAYLIGHT
By JACK LONDON
AUTHOR OF "THE CALL OF THE WILD"
"WHITE FANG," "MARTIN EDEN," ETC.

(Copyright, 1910, by the New York Herald Company.)
Copyright, 1910, by the MacMillan Company.

"They will never dream you are with us," Guggenhamer interjected, as the outlining of the matter drew to a close, his handsome Jewish eyes flashing enthusiastically. "They'll think you are reading on your own in proper buccanier style."

"Of course, you understand, Mr. Harnish, the absolute need for keeping our alliance in the dark," Nathaniel Letton warned, gravely.

Daylight nodded his head.

"And you also understand," Letton went on, "that the result can be productive of good. The thing is legitimate and right, and the only way may be hurt are the stockholders themselves. It is not an attempt to smash the market. As you see, you are to build the market. An honest investor will be the gainer."

"Yes, that's the very thing," Dowsett said. "The commercial need for copper is continually increasing. Ward Valley Copper, and all that it stands for—practically one-quarter of the world's supply, as I have shown you—is a big thing, how big, even we can scarcely estimate. Our arrangements are made. We have plenty of capital, ourselves, and yet we want more. Not only will you build Ward Valley, but you will at the same time gather Ward Valley in. This will be of inestimable advantage to us, while you and all of us will profit by it as well. And as Mr. Letton has pointed out, the thing is legitimate and square. On the eighteenth the directors meet, and instead of the customary dividend, a double dividend will be declared."

"There will be all sorts of rumors on the street," Dowsett warned Daylight, "but do not let them frighten you. These rumors may even originate with us. You can see how and why clearly. But rumors are to be

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 50th birthday with a crowd of miners on the Circle City Trail. The dance leads to heavy gambling in which over $200,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledges, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensational rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and declares he will join the friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Dowsett and Letton find him in the up-river district Harnish turns two tons of copper which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with them a few days later the big find deviates. A comrade discovers gold and Dowsett takes a rich vein. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization.

CHAPTER VII.

In no blaze of glory did Burning Daylight descend upon San Francisco. Not only had he been forgotten, but the Klondike along with him. The world was interested in other things, and the Alaskan adventure, like the Spanish War, was an old story. He settled down in St. Francis Hotel, was interviewed by the cut-reporters on the hotel-run, and received brief paragraphs of notice for twenty-four hours.

Several months passed in San Francisco, during which time he studied the game and its rules, and prepared himself to take a hand.

Tiring of being merely an onlooker, he ran up to Nevada, where the new gold-mining boom was fairly started—"just to try a flatter," as he phrased it to himself. The flatter on the Toiyah stock Exchange lasted just days, during which time his smashing, wild-bull game played ducks and drakes with the more stereotyped gamblers, and at the end of which time, having gambled Florida into his fist, he let go for a net profit of half a million. Whereupon, smacking his hip, he departed for San Francisco and the St. Francis Hotel. It tasted good, and his hunger for the game became more acute.

And once more the readers sensationalized him. BURNING DAYLIGHT was a big letter headline again. Interviewers flocked about him. Old files of magazines and newspapers were searched through, and the romantic and historic Elam Harnish, Adventurer of the Frost, King of the Klondike, and Father of the South-doughs, strode upon the breakfast table of a million homes along with the toast and breakfast foods. Even before his elected time, he was tormentedly hauled into the game. Financiers and promoters, and all the bosoms and jetsam of the sea of speculation surged upon the shores of his eleven millions. In self-defense he was compelled to open offices. He dabbled in little things at first—"stalling for time," as he explained it to Holdsworth, a friend he had made at the Alta-Pacific Club. Daylight himself was a member of the club, and Holdsworth had Daylight playing closely at first, for he was antonized by the multitude of sharks—"ground sharks," he called them; that flocked about him. He saw through their schemes readily enough, and even marveled that such numbers of them could find sufficient prey to keep them going. Their rascality and general dubiousness was so transparent that he could not understand how any one could be taken in by them.

So it was that he resolved to leave the little men, the Holdsworths, alone; and while he met them in good fellowship, and formed no deep friendships. He did not dislike the little men, the men of the Alta-Pacific, for instance. He merely did not elect to choose them for partners in the big game in which he intended to play. What this big game was, he did not know. He was waiting to find it. And in the meantime he played small hands, investing in several arid-lands reclamation projects and keeping his eyes open for the big chance when it should come along.

And then he met John Dowsett, the great John Dowsett. It was the first big magnate Daylight had met face to face, and he was pleased and charmed. There was such a kindly humanness about the man, such a genial directness, that Daylight found it hard to realize that this was the John Dowsett, president of a string of banks, insurance manipulator, reputed ally of the lieutenants of Standard Oil, and known ally of the Guggenhamers. Nor did his looks betoken his reputation and his manner. Physically, he guaranteed all that Daylight knew of him. Despite his sixty years and snow-white hair, his hand-shake was firm, hearty, and he showed no signs of decrepitude, walking with a quick, snappy step, making all movements definitely and decisively.

It was not long afterward that Daylight came on to New York. A letter from John Dowsett had been the cause—a simple little typewritten letter of several lines. But Daylight had thrilled as he read it. The bald sentences seemed gorged with mystery. "Our Mr. Howison will call upon you at your hotel. He is to be trusted. We must not be seen together. You will understand after we have had our talk." Daylight conned the words over and over. That was the big game had arrived, and it looked as if he were being invited to sit in and take a hand. Surely, for no other reason would one man so peremptory invite another man to make a journey across the continent.

They met—thanks to "our" Mr. Howison—up the Hudson, in a magnificent country home. Daylight, according to instructions, arrived in a private motor car which had been furnished him. Dowsett was already there, and another man whom Daylight recognized before the introduction was begun. It was Nathaniel Letton, and none other. Daylight had seen his face a score of times in the magazines and newspapers, and read about his standing in the financial world, and about his endowed University of Dartmouth. He, likewise, struck Daylight as a man of power, though he was puzzled in that he could find no likeness to Dowsett. Except in the matter of cleanliness—a cleanliness that seemed to go down to the deepest fibers of him—Nathaniel Letton was unlike the other in every particular. This to emaciation, he seemed a cold flame of a man. Not more than fifty, thatched with a sparse growth of iron gray hair, he looked several times the age of Dowsett.

They drank—that is, Nathaniel Letton took mineral water served

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 50th birthday with a crowd of miners on the Circle City Trail. The dance leads to heavy gambling in which over $200,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledges, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensational rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and declares he will join the friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Dowsett and Letton find him in the up-river district Harnish turns two tons of copper which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with them a few days later the big find deviates. A comrade discovers gold and Dowsett takes a rich vein. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization.

They met—thanks to "our" Mr. Howison—up the Hudson, in a magnificent country home. Daylight, according to instructions, arrived in a private motor car which had been furnished him. Dowsett was already there, and another man whom Daylight recognized before the introduction was begun. It was Nathaniel Letton, and none other. Daylight had seen his face a score of times in the magazines and newspapers, and read about his standing in the financial world, and about his endowed University of Dartmouth. He, likewise, struck Daylight as a man of power, though he was puzzled in that he could find no likeness to Dowsett. Except in the matter of cleanliness—a cleanliness that seemed to go down to the deepest fibers of him—Nathaniel Letton was unlike the other in every particular. This to emaciation, he seemed a cold flame of a man. Not more than fifty, thatched with a sparse growth of iron gray hair, he looked several times the age of Dowsett.

They drank—that is, Nathaniel Letton took mineral water served

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 50th birthday with a crowd of miners on the Circle City Trail. The dance leads to heavy gambling in which over $200,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledges, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensational rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and declares he will join the friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Dowsett and Letton find him in the up-river district Harnish turns two tons of copper which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with them a few days later the big find deviates. A comrade discovers gold and Dowsett takes a rich vein. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization.

CHAPTER VII.

In no blaze of glory did Burning Daylight descend upon San Francisco. Not only had he been forgotten, but the Klondike along with him. The world was interested in other things, and the Alaskan adventure, like the Spanish War, was an old story. He settled down in St. Francis Hotel, was interviewed by the cut-reporters on the hotel-run, and received brief paragraphs of notice for twenty-four hours.

Several months passed in San Francisco, during which time he studied the game and its rules, and prepared himself to take a hand.

Tiring of being merely an onlooker, he ran up to Nevada, where the new gold-mining boom was fairly started—"just to try a flatter," as he phrased it to himself. The flatter on the Toiyah stock Exchange lasted just days, during which time his smashing, wild-bull game played ducks and drakes with the more stereotyped gamblers, and at the end of which time, having gambled Florida into his fist, he let go for a net profit of half a million. Whereupon, smacking his hip, he departed for San Francisco and the St. Francis Hotel. It tasted good, and his hunger for the game became more acute.

And once more the readers sensationalized him. BURNING DAYLIGHT was a big letter headline again. Interviewers flocked about him. Old files of magazines and newspapers were searched through, and the romantic and historic Elam Harnish, Adventurer of the Frost, King of the Klondike, and Father of the South-doughs, strode upon the breakfast table of a million homes along with the toast and breakfast foods. Even before his elected time, he was tormentedly hauled into the game. Financiers and promoters, and all the bosoms and jetsam of the sea of speculation surged upon the shores of his eleven millions. In self-defense he was compelled to open offices. He dabbled in little things at first—"stalling for time," as he explained it to Holdsworth, a friend he had made at the Alta-Pacific Club. Daylight himself was a member of the club, and Holdsworth had Daylight playing closely at first, for he was antonized by the multitude of sharks—"ground sharks," he called them; that flocked about him. He saw through their schemes readily enough, and even marveled that such numbers of them could find sufficient prey to keep them going. Their rascality and general dubiousness was so transparent that he could not understand how any one could be taken in by them.

So it was that he resolved to leave the little men, the Holdsworths, alone; and while he met them in good fellowship, and formed no deep friendships. He did not dislike the little men, the men of the Alta-Pacific, for instance. He merely did not elect to choose them for partners in the big game in which he intended to play. What this big game was, he did not know. He was waiting to find it. And in the meantime he played small hands, investing in several arid-lands reclamation projects and keeping his eyes open for the big chance when it should come along.

And then he met John Dowsett, the great John Dowsett. It was the first big magnate Daylight had met face to face, and he was pleased and charmed. There was such a kindly humanness about the man, such a genial directness, that Daylight found it hard to realize that this was the John Dowsett, president of a string of banks, insurance manipulator, reputed ally of the lieutenants of Standard Oil, and known ally of the Guggenhamers. Nor did his looks betoken his reputation and his manner. Physically, he guaranteed all that Daylight knew of him. Despite his sixty years and snow-white hair, his hand-shake was firm, hearty, and he showed no signs of decrepitude, walking with a quick, snappy step, making all movements definitely and decisively

PIANOS PIANOS PIANOS

STEINWAY PIANOS
KNABE PIANOS
FISCHER PIANOS
HARDMAN PIANOS
STERLING PIANOS
AND OUR OWN CELEBRATED
PHILLIPS & CREW PIANO
AND MANY OTHERS

Write Today for Prices and Terms

*WE HAVE A NUMBER OF SLIGHTLY USED
PIANOS * VERY LOW PRICES*

... PIANOLA PIANOS — the kind any person can play ...

Georgia's Oldest Music House
ESTABLISHED 1865

..ATLANTA.. PHILLIPS & CREW COMPANY SAVANNAH

W. W. Williams, Local Representative

VICTOR Talking Machines

THE MOST PERFECT INSTRUMENT OF ITS KIND

$10.00 TO $200.00

... Sold on easy terms of payment ...

Victrola XVI
$200

Victrola XIV
$150

Victrola XI
$100

VICTOR RECORDS
FROM 60c
TO $7

Victrola X
$75

WRITE FOR CATALOGUES
AND PRICES
TODAY

Victrola IX
$50

Victrola VIII
$40

Victrola VI
$25

Victrola IV
$15

Bring Your Friends

Or anybody with you when you come to our store to buy shoes, in fact we are fond of criticism. It always brings out proof of our excellent price values and of our splendid new styles, our wide range of leathers, and the fit we give. So we are not afraid when you bring somebody along. Remember in our store we DON'T SELL you shoes—you buy them. Maybe this doesn't seem important at first, but it is a whole lot, and if you just think back the most of the shoes you bought elsewhere were sold you. Buy a pair of ours and see the difference.

... THE RACKET STORE ...
L. T. DENMARK, Proprietor

Will Lecture on Work

In Missionary Field
On two evenings next week, perhaps Monday and Tuesday, Mr. Cameron Johnson will lecture at the Presbyterian church here on the subject of China, Japan and Korea. His lecture will be illustrated with stereoscopic views of those countries, beautifully colored and of the very highest work of art.

While Mr. Johnson is a member of the Presbyterian church, the object of his visit is one of general education along missionary lines, and all the other churches are expected to participate in the two evenings' exercises. The expense of the lecture will be borne by general subscriptions, and no admission fees will be charged to the entertainers.

These lectures will be of especial interest at this time in view of the fact that China is at present rent with a revolution in an attempt to establish a republic. This step, it is said, is largely due to the work and influence of those who have been sent as missionaries to that country from the churches of the South.

Foley Kidney Pills

always give satisfaction because they always do the work. J. T. Shelton, Bremen, Ga., says: "I have used Foley Kidney Pills with great satisfaction and found more relief from their use than from any other kidney medicine, and I've tried almost all kinds. I can cheerfully recommend them to all sufferers from kidney and bladder trouble." Sold by Lively's Drug Store.

A woman who fails in her home fails in all. Home is woman's realm, given into her hands to regulate, govern and beautify. If she fails here she may look in vain for another kingdom; for she has failed in the only spot where she could have ultimately succeeded.

Hogs Devour Body of Prominent Dublin Man

Dublin, Ga., Jan. 25.—Last night Duncan Horsford, a prominent farmer living a mile from Yonkers, was found dead near his home. While waiting for supper he walked out of the house, and in a few minutes his wife called him to supper. After calling several times and hearing no response she began ringing the bell. Soon the neighbors and farm hands arrived and began searching for him and found him in the lot, where the hogs had eaten off both hands and feet and had disemboweled him. It is supposed he died from heart failure and after death the hogs had attacked him.

Mr. Horsford was about fifty years of age and leaves a wife and several children.

Cotton Seed for Sale

The famous C. H. Anderson sea island cotton seed at $1 per bushel. Anyone wishing the seed may secure same upon application to John Powell, overseer J. W. Williams' farm, Register, Ga., R. F. D. No. 2.

Elder Hanks' Appointments.
Elder Lee Hanks will preach as follows: Monday, Feb. 5, Upper Mill Creek; Tuesday, Nevils Creek; Wednesday, Bethlehem; Thursday, Lower Lotts Creek.

The Danger of La Grippe

is its fatal tendency to pneumonia. To cure your La Grippe coughs take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. R. E. Fisher, Washington, Kan., says: "I was troubled with a severe attack of La Grippe that threatened pneumonia. A friend advised Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and I got relief after taking the first few doses. I took three bottles and my La Grippe was cured." Get the genuine, in the yellow package. Sold by Lively's Drug Store.

HIGH GRADE INTERIOR TRIM

Stairs, Wainscoting, Grilles, Collonnades, etc., are properly manufactured by our expert mechanics, and we can save you money. Our stocks of Lumber, Sash, Doors, Blinds, Lath and Shingles, in fact, all building materials are high class; and our service is the kind that pleases.

Write for prices.
Augusta Lumber Co.,
AUGUSTA, GA.

"BUY OF THE MAKER"

It is often said to make a sale
It's just as good as LUZIANNE
Let no such argument prevail to wean you from your time-tried friend, LUZIANNE COFFEE

The Kelly-Taylor Co.
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

An Ellendale, N. D., man woke up in the night and saw someone going through his pockets, but didn't make any protest, so he told the police, because he didn't discover it wasn't his wife until he saw the burglar make an unladylike exit through the window.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is a reliable family medicine. Give it to your children, and take it yourself when you feel a cold coming on. It checks and cures coughs and colds and croup and prevents bronchitis and pneumonia. Sold by Lively's Drug Store.

For Tax Collector.
I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of tax collector of Bulloch county, subject to the Democratic nomination. I shall appreciate the support of every voter, and promise a faithful discharge of the duties if elected.
M. R. AKINS.

I am a candidate for tax collector of Bulloch county, subject to the Democratic nomination. I shall appreciate the support of every voter, and promise a faithful discharge of the duties if elected. Respectfully,
C. W. ENNIS.

I am a candidate for the office of tax collector of Bulloch county, subject to the Democratic primary. I shall thank my friends for their support, and pledge my best efforts to faithfully discharge the duties of the office if elected.
W. H. (DOLL) RUSHING.

For Ordinary.
I respectfully announce myself a candidate for ordinary of Bulloch county, subject to the next Democratic primary, subject to the duties of the office.
W. H. COSE.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for ordinary of Bulloch county, subject to the Democratic primary of 1912. I shall appreciate the support of my friends in the race, and pledge a faithful discharge of the duties of the office.
CURNEY H. ANDERSON.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for ordinary, subject to the Democratic primary of 1912, and if elected I will do all in my power to discharge the duties of the office to the best interests of the people.
Respectfully,
JAMES G. BRANNEN.

Having accomplished my desires in getting a bill passed giving our country children an equal showing with our own and city children, which was passed at the last session of the legislature, and having no action specially to go there another term, I announce myself a candidate for ordinary of Bulloch county at the next Democratic primary. Thanking the citizenship for the hearty support given me in my race for representative, I remain,
Yours truly,
J. W. WILLIAMS.

For Treasurer.
I announce myself a candidate for treasurer of Bulloch county, subject to the Democratic nomination. I will appreciate the support of every voter, and promise a faithful discharge of the duties of the office.
J. M. FORDMAN.

I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of treasurer of Bulloch county, subject to the Democratic primary. I shall appreciate the support of the voters, and pledge my best efforts to a faithful performance of the duties of the office if elected.
T. C. PENNINGTON.

I am a candidate for treasurer of Bulloch county subject to the action of the Democratic primary. I shall appreciate the support of the voters, and pledge my best efforts to a faithful performance of the duties of the office if elected.
J. H. ANDERSON.

For County Commissioner.
At the solicitation of a number of my friends, I hereby announce my candidacy for one of the places of county commissioner, subject to the action of the county commissioners, to be filled at the coming election. I will appreciate the assistance of my friends and will do the best that I am able to serve the county if elected.
S. F. SANDERS.

For Clerk Superior Court.
TO THE VOTERS OF BULLOCH COUNTY: I am a candidate for clerk of the superior court subject to the action of the Democratic primary, and will appreciate your support. Respectfully,
T. J. DENMARK.

For Solicitor of the City Court.
I hereby announce myself a candidate for solicitor of the city court of Statesboro, subject to the Democratic primary. The votes of my friends will be appreciated. Respectfully, HOMER C. PARKER.

TO THE VOTERS OF BULLOCH COUNTY: I hereby announce myself a candidate for solicitor of the city court of Statesboro, subject to your approval in the next Democratic primary. If elected I will give my very best effort to the proper conduct of said office. I will appreciate your support. Respectfully submitted,
FRANCIS B. HUNTER.

For Receiver of Tax Returns.
Thanking my friends for the kind support accorded me in the past, and hoping to merit their confidence in the future, I announce myself a candidate for election to the office of receiver of tax returns, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.
T. A. WILSON.

For State Senator.
To the Citizens of Bulloch County: Having been honored and privileged to represent my county and district in the Georgia state senate, and my friends requesting me to make the race, I hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of senator from this, the 17th senatorial district, to be voted for in the Democratic primary to be held the present year. I shall appreciate the support of the citizens of my county, and if elected I shall perform the duties of this office to the best of my ability. Respectfully,
C. H. PARKER.

(Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassium)
P.P.P.
Prompt Powerful Permanent
It is beneficial of...
F. V. LIPPMAN, SAVANNAH, GA.
Sold by W. H. ELLIS CO.

New Firm.
L. H. Suddath and C. H. Anderson have formed a copartnership in the stock business, and will occupy Anderson's new stable on Vine street, in front of the Union cotton warehouse and will have on hand a carload of Tennessee horses and mules, and respectfully solicit a portion of your trade. Thanking you for past patronage.
Yours respectfully,
SUDDATH & ANDERSON.

STOCK MICHELIN TIRES
Look for this Sign on Leading Garages
You cannot know what a good tire is until you try a Michelin properly inflated
IN STOCK BY
AVERITT AUTO COMPANY
STATESBORO, GEORGIA

CABBAGE PLANTS
Do you want Early Cabbage and plenty of them, too?
If so, buy your plants from us. They are raised from the best seed, and grown on the sea islands of South Carolina, which on account of being surrounded by water, raise plants that are earlier and harder than those grown in the interior. They can be set out sooner without danger from frost. Varieties: Early Jersey Wakefield, Charleston or Large Wakefield, Henderson's Succession and Flat Dutch. All plants carefully counted and packed ready for shipment, and best express rates in the South.
PRICES:
CABBAGE PLANTS LETTUCE, BEETS AND ONIONS
1,000 to 3,000 - Per 1,000 1,000 to 3,000 - Per 1,000
4,000 to 6,000 - - - $1.50 4,000 to 6,000 - - - $1.50
6,000 to 9,000 - - - 1.25 6,000 to 9,000 - - - 1.25
9,000 to 12,000 - - - 1.00 9,000 to 12,000 - - - 1.00
12,000 and over - - - .90 12,000 and over - - - .90
WE WILL MEET ALL COMPETITION
N. H. BLITCH COMPANY,
The Largest Truck Farm in the World,
MEGETT, S. C.

FROST PROOF CABBAGE PLANTS
GUARANTEED TO SATISFY CUSTOMERS
FROM THE ORIGINAL CABBAGE PLANT GROWERS.
Established 1868. Paid in Capital $30,000.00
We grow three tons of Cabbage Seed per season. Also grow full line of...
Wm. C. Geraty Co., Box 478 Yonges Island, S. C.

STOVER GASOLINE ENGINES
The simplest engine on the market—has less wearing parts than any other...
Stover's Good Engine—1 to 60 h.p.
Steam Engines, Boilers and Saw Mills
Complete Wiring, Sawing, Shingle and Pumping outfits a specialty
Mallory Machinery Co.
348 Cherry Street, NACOGES, LA.

We Invite You to Make This Bank Your Depository
If you have an idle hundred—or fifty or any other amount which you desire to lay aside for safe keeping bring it to this bank for deposit.
We issue certificates of deposit payable on demand, also Time Certificates bearing 5 per cent interest

Sea Island Bank
MILLION AND A HALF DOLLARS ASKED FOR BY 1,000 PERSONS
Washington, Feb. 2.—Southern claims for buildings and property destroyed in the civil war and claims for supplies furnished the union army were taken up in the house today in an omnibus claims bill, which carries a total of $1,551,583. The defeat of the French spoliation claims in the preceding congress prevented the approval of any of the Southern property claims, all of which have been approved by the United States courts of claims. An effort will be made to pass the bill without change. Efforts to put new claims into it during today's debate failed. More than 1,000 claims are represented in the measure.

SHOOTING AT NEGRO FROLIC—BRINGS DEATH TO TWO

PROVERBIAL RAZOR WAS MISSING—GUN WAS THE SUBSTITUTE
Nero Servant and Ben Haywood dead, and Sam King wounded. This is the net result of a very enjoyable "festive" on the plantation of Mr. Everitt Hendrix, about seven miles west of Statesboro, last Saturday night. Haywood was from Pulaski, Servant was from near Portal, and King is from Bulloch.

The exact cause of the shooting was not stated, but is supposed to have been one of the ordinary incidents of such occasions. Nero and Ben were inside the house and Sam was outside. Moved by a sudden impulse he whipped out his artillery and began firing. Ben was killed instantly, the ball passing through his body and penetrating Nero, who survived until Monday. King disappeared and is still at large, though the officers are on his trail, and will probably bring him in without much delay.

Cow Estray
Strayed from my place on East Main street Sunday evening, 4th inst., one medium-size Holstein milk cow, black and white, bob-tail. Information will be rewarded.
J. J. THOMPSON.

Nashville Troop Will Attend Macon Re-Union
Macon, Ga., Feb. 3.—A letter received Saturday morning from Capt. George Hager, of Nashville, commanding Troop A, Forrest Cavalry, states that this organization will attend the re-union in Macon, May 7, in full force, bringing down an even roster of 100 men for the event. This troop is one of the best known organizations in the South.

The letter also states that this troop will bring its own equipment, commissary department, cooking utensils, tableware, linen, blankets and the like, as well as its own chefs. The troop was one of the most popular attending the re-union at Little Rock last year.

Foley Kidney Pills will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. Sold by Lively's Drug Store.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be lost forever. No cure can be given until the cause is removed. We will positively destroy the cause of deafness, and give you your hearing back, if you want the good thing for nothing. Write for our free literature.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Special Notice to the Ladies of Statesboro and Bulloch Co.
We are receiving daily express shipments of spring coat suits and dresses, also separate skirts and tailored waists. You are specially invited to call and see our new spring lines whether you are ready to buy or not. Our spring shows in the ready-to-wear line in Statesboro.
E. C. OLIVER,
The Only Ready-to-Wear store in Statesboro.

For Rent.
A 2-horse farm, on 340 acres of land, three miles east of Stillson; good house and 100 acres of land, fenced in a pasture of about 1,000 acres, as good range as there is anywhere; will rent for one, three, or five years. For further particulars see or address Thomas L. Beasley, Statesboro, Ga.

Foley Kidney Pills
FOR BACKACHE, RHEUMATISM AND BLADDER
SOLD BY LIVELY'S DRUG STORE.

TO THE FIRST FIFTY
The Times has arranged for fifty subscriptions to the Southern Ruralist, one of the leading agricultural papers of the South, published twice a month in Atlanta. These will be given absolutely free to the first fifty subscribers, new or old, who pays up to Jan. 1, 1913. A number have already paid—others will at once. You'll have to hurry if you want to be among the first fifty.

SOUTH'S BIG WAR CLAIMS AGAIN BEFORE THE HOUSE
WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Southern claims for buildings and property destroyed in the civil war and claims for supplies furnished the union army were taken up in the house today in an omnibus claims bill, which carries a total of $1,551,583. The defeat of the French spoliation claims in the preceding congress prevented the approval of any of the Southern property claims, all of which have been approved by the United States courts of claims. An effort will be made to pass the bill without change. Efforts to put new claims into it during today's debate failed. More than 1,000 claims are represented in the measure.

A few more 30-gallon barrels of that fine syrup just arrived. See us quick if you are in need. W. C. Parker & Co.

Got Tired Walking. Stole Mule to Ride
Because Charlie Williams, colored, got tired walking he is now in jail, with no immediate prospect of having to do much walking before superior court, which prospect is altogether pleasing to Charlie.

The real charge against Charlie is mule stealing, and he admits the charge. He lives in Emanuel county, but has relatives in Bulloch. Last Sunday he decided to come down and "sponge" a few meals from his Bulloch kinsfolk, and his only means of locomotion was a foot-back. His batteries went dead and his engine stalled in the vicinity of Mr. L. R. Lanier's, near Aaron, and Charlie espied an idle mule in Mr. Lanier's lot. If there is anything Charlie does not understand the workings of it is a mule. He therefore reasoned that mule-back riding would be better than walking, so he appropriated the idle animal. He reached the home of his father-in-law, Nero Servant, in time for dinner, and turned the mule loose to find its way back home.

He will get free dinners and a rest at the county boarding house.

Preserve Your Meat With Liquid Smoke
Why waste your time smoking your meat when it can be done better and cheaper with our FICOL PRESERVAR—liquid smoke? Guaranteed to keep your meat firm and sweet and free from skippers an entire year—through the hottest weather. One quart is enough to smoke 500 pounds of meat. Book of instructions with each package.
PORTER-KENDRICK CO.

The Sound Sleep of Good Health is not for those suffering with kidney ailments and irregularities. The prompt use of Foley Kidney Pills will dispel backache and rheumatism, heal and strengthen sore, weak and ailing kidneys, restore normal action, and with it health and strength. Mrs. M. P. Spaulding, Sterling, Ill., says: "I suffered great pain in my back and kidneys, could not sleep at night and could not raise my hands over my head. But two bottles of Foley Kidney Pills cured me." Sold by Lively's Drug Store.

Cotton Census Bill By Congressman Bell
Washington, Feb. 1.—Two federal representatives Bell, of Georgia, has prepared a bill which would authorize the director of the census to collect and publish statistics concerning the amount of cotton ginned, the quantity of cotton consumed in manufacturing establishments; the quantity of baled cotton on hand; the number of active consuming cotton spindles and the quantity of cotton imported and exported with the country of origin and destination.

In addition to this the director is authorized to compile all available information concerning the production, consumption and stocks of cotton in foreign countries and the number of cotton consuming spindles in such country. These reports are to be published monthly.

"GUANO"
We will represent the Georgia Chemical Works this season, who manufacture the famous PATAPSCO guano. We will have associated with us W. W. DeLoach and D. B. Lester, Jr. Any business given them will be appreciated by us. See us before you trade.

SORRIER & BRANNEN

Banking by Mail
YOU can bank by mail, if you wish, just as easily and safely as you can in person. Even a dollar will open an account. Write us for full particulars.
THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK of Statesboro
Capital $50,000.00 Surplus $10,000.00
J. E. McCORMACK, President
J. P. REGISTER, JAS. B. RUSHING, Directors
M. G. BRANNEN, W. H. SIMMONS, W. W. WILLIAMS, BROOKS SIMMONS, Cashier

NEGRO SIGNS HIS NAME; WHITE MAN MAKES HIS X
INCIDENT IS NOT UNCOMMON, SAY COURT OFFICIALS
Atlanta, Feb. 1.—Two federal prisoners were brought into Clerk O. C. Fuller's office Wednesday morning to swear off their fines of $100 each.

The men were E. T. Blacklock, of Gwinnett county, white, and Sol Williams, of Cobb county, a negro. Both had served short terms in the Fulton county jail and being unable to pay their fine went through the customary formalities of swearing that they possessed not over $20 which could be used to pay the fine.

"Mr. Blacklock," called Clerk Fuller, and he administered the customary oath.

"Sign your name right here," continued the clerk.

"Aw, I can't write my name," replied the man in a natural tone, as if such a thing were an everyday occurrence, and the clerk wrote the name and let Blacklock touch the pen as he put the cross underneath the necessary "this mark."

"All right, Sol," called out the clerk as he told Blacklock he might go.

The negro, who appeared to be an ordinary country negro, took the oath and wrote in a fairly legible hand his full name, "Solomon Williams," bowed to Mr. Fuller and left the office.

"Do you know that is one of the commonest things up here that happens in my office and one of the most—well, disgusting," Clerk Fuller added after pausing for the right word.

"Nearly every negro, young and old, who comes before me can at least sign his name, and yet we have a number of white men from the country districts who can't write their names and who don't seem to be the least embarrassed about saying so."

"That negro man is over 50 years old and that white man is not 25. The negro grew to manhood when an education was far harder to get than it is now, and the white man today has every chance in the world to overcome his ignorance and lack of knowledge if he had but the ambition and pride to do so."

Now, there's a sermon on illiteracy and the need of a compulsory education law. A white man who couldn't write his name—and in jail.

Special Notice to the Ladies of Statesboro and Bulloch Co.
We are receiving daily express shipments of spring coat suits and dresses, also separate skirts and tailored waists. You are specially invited to call and see our new spring lines, whether you are ready to buy or not. Our spring shows in the ready-to-wear line in Statesboro.
E. C. OLIVER,
The Only Ready-to-Wear Store in Statesboro.